DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 as being anticipated by US Patent #5,829,159 to HODGINS et al. The applicant is reminded that the claims are directed to a beam assembly. The beam is a sub-combination of the machine. The machine and the chain are not positively cited in the claims. Should the applicant be seeking patent protection that includes the machine and chain, he must claim the beam assembly in combination with the machine and chain. The claims in this action have been examined as the beam assembly alone. HODGINS et al. discloses the use of a beam assembly including a plurality of spaced parallel beam tubes (43) alternating and rigidly rotatable on a plurality of beam rods (50). The applicant is reminded that the manner in which a device is employed does not differentiate a prior art device from satisfying the same structural limitations. Although the device of HODGINS et al. is intended for use with paper, there is nothing prohibiting this same device from being constructed and arranged "for" connected to a tarpaulin or "for" allowing the transfer of a tarpaulin to a tarpaulin machine. Again, the tarpaulin or the tarpaulin machine is not being positively claimed. Hence, It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made that the device of HODGINS et al. is fully structured to be connected to a tarpaulin. Regarding claim 2, each end of the beam rod (50) includes an attachment pin (55,57). In reference to claim 3, adjacent beam tubes (43) are attached by weld strips (40,47).

Art Unit: 3635

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4-8 remain as being objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 6/23/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Regarding the applicant's argument with respect to amendments made to clarify the preamble, the amendments are noted. However, the claims are directed to an apparatus "for use" with a certain other item; wherein the other item (i.e. the tarpaulin) is still not being positively claimed. The applicant is reminded that the manner in which a device is employed does not differentiate that device from a prior art device satisfying the claimed structural limitations.

In response to applicant's argument that the device of HODGINS et al. is intended for use with paper, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
